1954 Car Tags Blue, Gold; Slogan 'Water Wonderland'

Secretary of State Owen J. Cleary announced Thursday that Michigan's 1954 license plates will be blue and gold in color.

Cleary announced the color change will abandon the present policy of alternating black and white which has been in vogue for many years.

The new plates, which soon will go into production at Southern Michigan prison, will use gold numerals on a blue background. Cleary said the blue and gold combination was picked from the state's seal.

Cleary admitted the black and white combination has proved extremely ledgible and durable, but he said constant repetition has deemphasized the annual registration change and invited counterfeiting.

In addition to the color change, Michigan's 1954 plates will bear a slogan, "Water Wonderland."

FARM FACTS from your County Agricultural Agent

By Ed Rebman, Co. Agr'l Agent

June means commencement to high school graduates, but it also means "where now?"

There's an answer to this for farm boys who don't want to go through four years of college, who find no appeal in city life, or who don't feel secure enough to start farming now, according to Ed. Rebman, Charlevoix County Agricultural Agent.

"Michigan State College short courses offer an excellent means of getting plenty of good, practical training, and in a short time, too," Rebman said. All over Michigan, but particularly in the north, there are resourses which could be expanded with more training, says Ralph W. Tenny, director of the M. S. C. short courses. In the last century farm population has decreased from 85 per cent to 15 per cent of the nation's population, but farm production has risen—and must continue to rise.

"This means that farmers will have to be able to produce more, with less help," Tenny says. "We want to aid in this. Trained men will do the job quicker and better."

Students interested in the short course program should contact the M. S. C. short course representative for their area. In Northern Michigan and the Upper Peninsula it's Carl Hoyt; Western Michigan, Robert E. Dennis; Eastern Michigan, Vernon C. Larson, and Donald Shepard for Southern Michigan.

Information can also be obtained from county agents, 4-H agents, vocational agriculture teachers, or the Short Course department at M. S. C., East Lansing.

Use of a hormone spray may help your tomato plants produce ripe fruit two to three weeks earlier, reports Ed. Rebman.

He says hormone sprays have been working well in counteracting the effect of low night temperatures. Fruit set, he explains, depends on the presence of a hormone or growth controlling chemical. There isn't enough of the chemical in the tomato flower at temperatures below 60 degrees.

S.H. Wittwer, Michigan State College horticulturist, advises plant flowers while they are open, applying the spray to the tomato Ordinary household sprayers can be used on small plantings. On commerical plantings special one-quart sprayers are used in applying the hormone. The chemical is available at many seed stores.

Wittwer suggests going through the plantings once every three to five days and spraying all blossoms showing color. Keep the spray off the foliage as much as possible.

He says fruit set will be increased only as long as night temperatures stay below 60 degrees. But fruit size may be increased by spraying anytime during the season. The size of tomatoes has been boosted as much as 30 per cent in some cases.

Bids Accepted by Charlevoix Hospital Board Until June 24

The Charlevoix Hospital board of directors are accepting bids for the new area hospital to be built on the Trailer Park site overlooking Lake Michigan at Charlevoix, Fred W. Willis, chairman of the board announced recently.

Sealed bids for general construction, plumbing, heating and ventilating, laundry equipment, food service equipment and electrical work will be accepted until 2:00 p. m. June 24 when they will be opened at a public meeting at the city hall.

Construction is expected to begin as soon thereafter as the contractor can bring his equipment to the city, Mr. Willis said.

Final approval of the plans for the area hospital by the Michigan Office of Hospital Survey and Construction made it possible to advertise for bids at this time.

The hospital, which will have a maximum of 44 beds and 10 bassinets will cost an estimated $600,000 when completely equipped. It will be financed by funds raised by public subscription and a federal grant made available through the Hill Burton act.

It will be constructed of concrete with steel re-inforcements and brick facing.

Gordon Cornwell and Co. of Traverse City are the architects.

The one story structure will be constructed in the shape of a modified Greek Cross. The north arm will house only rooms for patients as will the north side of the west wing. The westerly section of the wing will contain the maternity ward with nursery and formula room, while the south section will house the labor and delivery rooms, operating rooms, central supply station and an emergency room.

The eastern section of the cross, where the main entrance will be located, will also hold the waiting room, radiology and laboratory and related rooms to the north and business offices, pharmacy, record and administrative offices to the south.

The southern extension will house the maintenance department, including the kitchen, laundry and heating plant, nurses and staff lounges and administrator's department.

LETTERBOX

(Copy of letter written to Representative Louis E. Anderson. A similar letter was sent to Representative Arnell Engstrom.)

Mr. Louis E. Anderson
House of Representatives
Lansing, Michigan
(Ref. Straits Bridge)

Dear Mr. Anderson:

We understand that a resolution or a bill has been presented to the Legislature which provides that no state funds of any kind be used for the principal, interest, maintenance or other expenses incidental to the bridge project. We are in agreement with this legislation and respectfully ask that you give it support.

Newspaper reports quote that Bridge Authority has asked the Legislature for $500,000 or more annually for maintenance of the bridge. It follows that whoever assumes the expense of maintenance assumed the risk for the entire structure.

We view the proposed bridge as of little economic value to this area, or any other area for that matter. It merely would partly replace other transportation facilities which proved ample for many years and with which business, both small and large, operated on both sides of the straits most efficiently. The few minutes automobiles and trucks would save getting across certainly does not justify going in debt over two hundred million dollars in principal, interest, maintenance and incidentals. We still would have to support the railroad carferries as the most important lifeline to our industrial well being. Claim is made that straits ferries operate at a loss. People would be willing to pay to the state ferries the 25 percent increase for getting across that was authorized to the bridge.

As you know, not so many years back manufacturing industry established itself in lower Michigan as near as possible to source of supply of raw materials. As raw materials gradually disappeared and industry was forced to find supplies elsewhere, involving inbound freight costs, it became harder and harder to meet competition in the interstate markets. Both industry and individual communities were threatened. Transit tariffs saved a good portion of the industry and re-established community economy. (See Note *)

Because we are not on natural trans-continental lanes, and Michigan carriers derived little revenue from through traffic, to protect transportation investment Michigan was subdivided into several zones which provided for graduated freight rate arbitraries over and above trans-continental rate formula, requiring the shipping public to pay higher rates than competing industry located on through lanes. This created a hardship to industry, particularly in the upper half of lower Michigan, affecting fruit growing, farming, food processing etc.

Interstate Commerce Commission Docket No. 13313, approved June 2, 1925, reduced the number of zones, and the area approximately Cedar Springs north to the straits was placed into one zone. Another corrective measure was taken (1931). However these decisions did not totally eliminate the disadvantages to industry in our area. (See Note **)

Some of us gave deep thought and played leading parts in the development of the milling-in-transit tarriffs and the reduction of the zone arbitraries toward the end of saving both the industry and the transportation facilities, both factors appearing equally important to our economy.

The above points out the somewhat natural disadvantages by disappearance of some raw materials and our geographical position. In terms of years these disadvantages have been met to a reasonable extent by the spread of diversified small industry, farming, fruit growing, processing of locally developed raw materials, tourist and resort development as associated with our Great Outdoors.

Now a threat to our economy appears which seems to be of our own making, excessive across-the-board taxation, from the federal government down to the township unit. Small business and new industrial business is particularly affected. In order to neutralize the diadvantages previoously pointed out it becomes necessary to find compensating benefits. Where may we point to? The answer: Favorable tax structure and/or pay envelopes (labor). Prejudicial transportation costs plus heavy taxes on industry, especially state and local, certainly does not permit us to market the merchandise we produce except in local manner; we cannot compete with industry in other states located on through lanes.

It is commonly known that considerable land in Michigan is assessed for tax purposes at more than resale value. It is also known that some of the small industry in our area is reluctant to expand or improve their premises because of the tax threat. During good times, when we can afford it, we do not particularly mind paying reasonable taxes if we can see a reasonable return for our money. At the same time we should be entitled to cushion ourselves against possible recession or depression.

Because of these, and many other good reasons that could be stated, we express opposition to the proposed Straits bridge and the placing of further tax burdens on our shoulders, particularly where there is no promise of a return, and we sincerely hope that you will do everything in your power to prevent it.

With kindest regards,

J. F. BUGAI, Secreaary
ELLSWORTH COMMUNITY CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.

Note * — Milling-in-transit tarrif is a rate formula under which raw materials shipped from distant points can be stopped off enroute for fabrication, the finished product reshipped, and the through rate applied from point of origin of the raw material to final destination of the finished product. This establishes competitive relation with fabricating mills established near sources of supply.

Note  — The area north of Grand Rapids was divided into two zones, Zone C and Zone D; Zone D being all that territory north of Reed City to the straits. Both zones paid arbirary rates over transcontinental formula. But Zone D paid higher arbitraries than Zone C. For example, fruit and cherry growers in the Grand Traverse region were unable to meet the competition even from Shelby and Hart. The two zones were combined in 1925 and this helped to re-establish the fruit and cherry industry in the Grand Traverse region.

While the combined zone now takes the same arbitrary, it is still an arbitrary over trans-continental rate formula, amounting to about 9c per cwt., according to confirmation received by us recently.

In about 1935 another slight reduction was accomplished for the cherry industry by placing fruit in the same classification with vegetables.

The Dropped Gauntlet

BY ED LEHRBASS

The opinions expressed by Ed Lehrbass in this column are not to be construed necessarily, nor even probably as those of The Herald. They are only those of an experienced and responsible commentator.

Information came my way that Claude (Doc) Pearsall is missed on the board of supervisors. Could it be that folks over Wilson township way were misinformed? But then those things need be left to time and it'll always tell.

Which brings us to a little story that came my way this past week end. It concerns a town in the lower part of the state that was really out there pitching to get things done on a community wide basis and in a big way.

Some of the wiser of those among the top echelon, bringing the town from the bottom by its bootstraps, decided that there're members of the community that weren't needed in the crusade. The crusade to bring the town from the cellar into the first division, commercially speaking. Well, everything that needed doing was done without even an inkling, supposedly, given those considered not capable of fathoming the working of greater minds. But the pseudo wisdom which came onto the few in the first flush of finding gold under each stone that was turned in the past they trod was very revealing. It revealed to those less wise, that the path of the top echelon was due for some rough going. There would be a time when there would be no gold under turned stones and then there would be a grasping of straws in the wind, that mayhap they were gold.

All this was very clear to those that were thought to be without wisdom. They knew that with patience there would be a time when the need for them would be great. When they gave their assistance with unabashed awareness that the great had become humble.

As this story was told I wondered who was the wiser? The workings of this old world are after a pattern, of, give it time.

Over Mancelona way there are a bunch of the boys that got together with archery their object. And each fall they apply it to the hunting of deer. They've decided there is no greater form of game conservation. Somewhere in the neighborhood of fifty archery hunters ended up with one deer for the last two years.

Percy Penfold's son is really doing things in engineering on lake going vessels. But Percy forgot to mention that he's no amateur at mechanics. There was a time the Herald office safe wouldn't work. But with the keen touch of a mechanic's fingers it wasn't long 'till the safe was opened, by our Mr. Penfold.

They need better public relations in Washington. Recollect that our senior class took the trip to Washington? Seeing a lot of folks, mostly Republicans, brought this remark from a class member when it was suggested they stop at the Zoo in Detroit on their way home. "We've seen enough Republicans, haven't we?"

Remember we once had a Harry Truman in the White House? That boy knew that figures could be made to tell any story a body had a mind to set before the public. That's why Harry had so many economists around him.

Which brings us to: did you folks note that this past week "Bow Tie" Williams signed a Mackinac bridge aid bill? That guy can't be a Democrat 'cause he thinks too much like a Republican. And how come he missed the Queen crowning in England? Wouldn't he be an ideal road commissioner, talking an ear off you while riding over some of the bumpiest roads.

My Detroit Tiger observer tells me that you can get the team out of the league cellar as easy as you could fire Briggs and Gehringer.

From where I sit ... by Joe Marsh

A Little Headwork Saves a Lot of Footwork

"I don't ever aim to give up fishing," Pappy Hayes said one day, "but the older I get the less I like hiking over to Pike's Creek. Guess I'll have to bring the fish nearer to me."

So Pappy got his nephew to bulldoze down about three acres of bottom land. Then he dammed up the little stream there.

He wrote the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service, in Washington, and got some "blue gills" and bass to stock it—free. Pappy's idea wound up giving him (and us) just about the best fishing pond in the county . . . right in his own back yard.

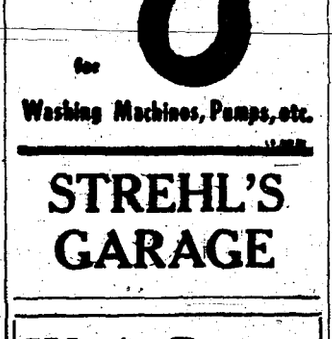

From where I sit, Pappy may be older than some of us but his mind is active—and open. He's ready to listen to anybody with an idea. That's why he and I can talk on any subject—sometimes about his preference for buttermilk and mine for beer. And though we disagree, we respect each other's opinion. That's neighborliness without a "catch" to it.

Michigan Mirror

Assured that its business receipts tax bill will become law, the Michigan Legislature returned to Lansing this week.

Final adjournment was on the legislators' schedule.

In deciding he would permit the bill to become a law without his signature, Governor G. Mennen Williams raised a question of the measure's constitutionality. He declared the bill "is full of inequities and obscurities. Some of its language is positively ungrammatical and other sections may be unconstitutional."

A Supreme court test, if prolonged for months, would toss a monkey-wrench into prospects of immediate tax relief. The act becomes effective July 1.

Governor Williams' political barrage that the bill was "conceived in secrecy, drafted in haste, and adopted in ignorance" drew immediate answers from Republican legislative leaders.

Senator George N. Higgins, chairman of the Senate Taxation committee which sprung the bill at the 11th hour, said "it was the fairest tax bill presented to the Legislature." Senator Carlton H. Morris of Kalamazoo, Republican floor leader and House Speaker Wade Van Valkenburg defended the bill staunchly and derided the governor's criticism.

Republicans did not defend the 11th hour methods employed to get the bill through the House: Suspension of rules, explanation of the bill by lobbyists on the floor, and application of gag restrictions.

In fact Senator Higgins said that if changes in the law were needed, "I am sure the majority of the Legislature will stand ready to make needed corrections."

The active part played by representatives of the Ford Motor Company and General Motors Corporation in drafting the bill drew editorial criticism from the three Detroit daily newspapers. Ford and General Motors are Detroit - centered manufacturing companies.

The Detroit News charged: "It is not denied that representatives of two very large taxpayers played leading roles in the drafting, if not the conception of the measure. Indeed, when it reached the House, which up to then had not had the chance to examine a printed copy of it, these two were the only authorities deemed capable of explaining, in a closed session of the body, what the bill contained."

The Detroit Times commented: "The speed with which this bill was jammed through the House and Senate naturally leads to suspicion. Most legislators confess they don't understand it. They voted to pass the measure only because lobbyists for powerful manufacturers had approved it.

"The action of the House in inviting these lobbyists to try and explain the confusing provisions on the floor of the chamber, and in preventing debate before the roll call, was an unforgiveable exhibition of incompetence."

The Detroit Free Press declared the bill "was written by lobbyists representing some of the state's biggest - corporate interests. It was rushed through both houses in three days without debate. So bewildered were the members that it was necessary to call two lobbyists onto the floor of the House, in secret session, to tell the legislators what they had adopted. This whole procedure has been without precedent in the history of this state.

The editorial criticisms indicate the legislators' methods presented more of a target then the bill itself. Unfortunately for the Republicans the facts about the tax blitz cannot be denied. The bill was drafted by automobile manufacturers engaged in interstate business. It was rushed through the legislature in a matter of days.

Like all other issues which become involved in politics, lines are formed along party lines. Republicans defend, Democrats criticize.

If the Supreme court rules the law to be unconstitutional, Governor Williams will have another feather in his hat. And he will not be reluctant to display it with another election day already nearing in 1954.

There is a group of taxpayers in Michigan who feel that economy not more taxes, should have been the solution to the state's deficit.

Here is editorial comment from the South Haven Daily Tribune: "The ways to achieve economy in state government are too numerous to mention. Savings on the payroll is one opportunity. Last year there were 43,069 on Michigan's state payroll —second highest number of the nine midwestern states. There is no business organization of 100 people where 90 can't do the job it it's necessary. They do at vacation times."

And so it goes - a ready-made issue for the hot stove league next winter.

It is easy to criticize. It is not easy to criticize and also offer a constructive solution. Other than declare the legislature should economize, critics have been slow to suggest a practical alternate to the business receipts tax which will affect only 75,000 taxpayers.

A state income tax, paid by both business firms and individual taxpayers, would have revived the old arguments leading to four rejections at ballot referendums. Four times in the past the voters of Michigan have turned down a state income tax. It would have affected many, many more taxpayers than the business receipts bill. The legislators must be elected and re-elected to stay in office.

Because of obvious differences prevailing between the House and Senate leaders Senator Higgins' strategy proved to be effective. He waited until the 11th hour. His committee ditched the carefully prepared state income tax bill that was drafted by experts at the University of Michigan at legislators' request. The business receipts bill was popped out. A revised bill was then produced during the final week of deliberation. It was either this or nothing.

GREAT LAKES BASS

Sometimes it takes the non-resident sportsman to find out where the best fishing in Michigan is available. Such is the case with Great Lakes bass—both small and large mouth. During the first two weeks of the season which opens June 20th you'll find Ohio anglers galore along certain shore lines of certain Great Lakes, wading and floating in what usually amounts to a most successful search for black bass. To be sure you'll meet Michigan fishermen there, too, but they'll be outnumbered!

Choice Spots

There are rocky reefs for those who can find them in Lake Erie between Monroe and Toledo. Water lies no more than 3 to 4 feet deep over these shoals this year, and with warmer water temperatures in this shallower lake bass will have completed spawning, and will be "on the feed."

But better fishing is to the north. From Harbor Beach around to Caseville the shoreline of the Thumb is home-sweet home to hordes of big bass—almost all small-mouth in that area. To be specific about "where to go," there's a rock and shale formation just off Port Hope which always attracts the fish during the early part of the season. Crawfish scamper along to hide beneath the crumbling shale. During the scampering a goodly number are gobbled up by bass, moving into water no more than 10 inches deep in frenzied early morning hunts.

With an offshore breeze or calm water, the wading fisherman can spin-cast small plugs and wobblers, or spinner and nightcrawlers, with a good chance to bring home five nice bass. Casting close to submerged rocks which may run as much as 5 feet in diameter usually produces best action.

Boats Available

While there are a few boat liveries scattered along the shore it's best to carry your own or plan to wade. "Whisky Harbor" east of the coast guard light at Port Hope has one livery, with cabin accommodations, too. And there are others near Port Austin.

May Use Fly Rods

Spinning tackle is most deadly because of its distance casting possibilities, but fly rod fishermen, using tiny spinners or plugs take their limits, too. Moving west of Port Austin down the Bay shoreline to Caseville one finds bass fishing reefs in somewhat deeper water, requiring boat fishing.

In the Sebewaing area, around the huge bullrush islands, prime bass waters await you. Here you'll find the large-mouth variety close to shore. Boat liveries are much easier to find in this section, too.

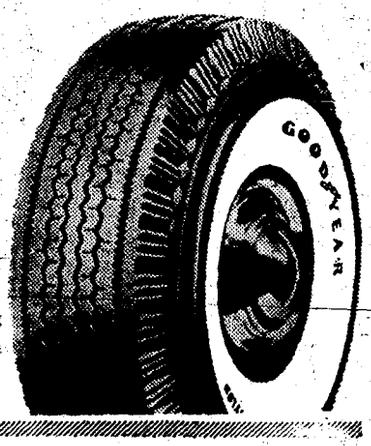

In any event, you bass fishermen will do well to explore Great Lakes waters this season in your quest for battling bass! It's another fishing thrill for you in Michigan Outdoors.

The Servicemens' LETTER

Hi Fellas:

Fred Holland writes from the U. S. S. Cogswell, "On May 5th we left Newport with five other Destroyers, one Sub and one Carrier, for 10 days of Advanced Submarine exercises and ended up at Galveston, Texas. As we were there only four days I don't suppose my opinion is worth much, but I'll take Michigan to Texas or any other state. The people are friendly enough but the climate is terrible.

'All during June and the first of August, we will either be operating in and out of Newport or tied up to a buoy in Newport Harbor. Although the dates aren't exact, we start on a "Round the World" cruise in August and will arrive back in Newport around March of '54.'

'Sorry I missed so many people when I was home on leave, but I was only in East Jordan for about two hours on Saturday afternoon." Fred saw Gloria Meredith and she and Jim had him up to their place for a chicken dinner. He and Jim hadn't seen each other for almost a year so they had quite a lot to talk over.

James Arnott, S. A. is now stationed at the Navy Yard—B. T. School in Philadelphia, Pa.

George Walker and Ivan Nemecek are home on leave for about 15 more days. George will report back to Barksdale, La., and Ivan will go to Point Mugu, Calif.

Here's a letter from Traverse City, "Hi Fellas, Just a note to let you all know that I haven't forgotten all of yau. This is just a little unfortunate interlude and before many weeks I'll be back on the job.'

'Keep those letters coming in. The men at the Post Office will pass them on to Betty Jo so she'll have something to write to you. So long, "Jake" Snyder."

Information and Education Office — Ordnance Replacement Training Center, Aberdeen Proving Ground, Maryland, sent in the following release dated May 27, 1953: "Private Robert C. Graham, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Graham of Route 3, East Jordan, Mich., has been graduated from the Small Arms Repair School of the Ordnance Replacement Training Center here.'

'Students at the Small Arms Repair School of the Ordnance Replacement Training Center learn how to repair and rebuild all hand and shoulder weapons used by the Army—including rifles, pistols, machine guns and carbines. They also learn to repair Infantry mortars and the "Bazooka"—recoiless rifle.'
